THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1911.

Published every week-day afternoon.
 Subscriptions: One year, $3.00; one month, 25 cents; single copy, 1 cent.

Entered at the post office at Barre as second-class matter.

Frank E. Langley, Publisher.

The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending last Saturday was copies, the largest circulation of any daily paper in Vermont outside of Burlington.

Hardwick throbs once more. Good!

Let us hope that Kansas "tarred school teacher" will not take to the vaudeville stage.

Now that Montpelier proposes to have a wire inspector, Cavendish ought to have one, too.

Yesterday's shipwreck was not the first time that William Jennings Bryan has been left high and dry.

Smuggling Chinese into the country through Vermont is a "yellow peril"—for those who undertake it. See the result in Rutland yesterday.

The addition of five thousand dollars to the financial entrenchment of Heaton hospital at Montpelier means the furthering of the work of relieving humanity from its ills. There can scarcely be too much beneficence of this sort, bestowed particularly on the smaller institutions which are not heavily endowed to carry on their work.

The tantrums of the suffragettes and their gladly accepted "martyrdoms" in prison for smashing windows and doing other acts of violence in London, do not tend to strengthen the cause of woman's suffrage in the United States, even if they do in England. Making common law of themselves, as the women of England are doing, has a tendency to alienate a great deal of powerful, dignified support.

In spite of the marked increase in motor car traffic in a large city like Boston, it is worthy of note that automobiles during the year, last recorded, were responsible for only twenty-six per cent. of the fatal street accidents, while horse-drawn vehicles were responsible for thirty per cent. and trolley cars for the remainder, or forty-four per cent. Inasmuch as we are hearing so much nowadays about the frightful mortality from the automobile, it is only just that we should take the official statistics to measure calm judgment of the situation.

News should be carried to the newspapers out of the state, which have commented rather caustically on the small-pox situation in Vermont, that the state board of health has made rapid progress in stamping out the disease, although considerably handicapped at the start by the delay in receiving notification of the prevalence of the disease in towns in the northern part of the state. The experience should prove a lesson to local boards of health and to physicians to make immediate report of infectious diseases of this sort, so that prompt quarantine under direct authority of the state board of health may be secured.

In Sacramento, Cal., towels have been abolished in the public schools because of a recent outbreak of eye disease in one school that was traced to the common use of a towel. The towel is really more dangerous than the drinking cup. Children ought to receive careful instruction as to the danger of eye infections.—Springfield, Republican.

This is a feature of public health precautions that is frequently overlooked, and it deserves to receive all the publicity which the newspapers can give to it. Common towels can carry germs of disease just as easily as the common drinking cup. Up-to-date places of public resort provide individual towels of cloth or thin paper, which are to be discarded after the first use, the cloth towels to be washed and the others to be burned. The Sacramento idea is in line with good judgment.

If Harry Atwood is a sensible man, he will not carry out his announced intention of witnessing the Harvard-Yale football game Saturday from the vantage point of an aeroplane, for Atwood ought to realize that the mechanism of his aeroplane may go wrong and cause him to shoot downward at any minute, in which case 40,000 people, cooped up in the stadium, would be at the mercy of the uncontrolled air machine. If an aeroplane should fall toward the huge crowd gathered in the vast enclosure, it would be an absolute impossibility for the people to take shelter anywhere, as the crowding of the exits would shut off all chance to escape. Therefore, Atwood, if he is open to reason, will decide not to jeopardize the lives and limbs of the thousands gathered in the stadium.

THE RED CROSS SEALS.

By the annual report of the treasurer of the Vermont Red Cross society, it is learned that the sale of Red Cross seals last Christmas enabled the society to aid considerably in the treatment of patients at the Vermont sanatorium at Pittsford. Inasmuch as the same policy will be carried out during the coming holidays, it behooves the public of the entire state to purchase these seals to encourage the work undertaken. After the holiday returns are completed, let it be possible for the society to report that the entire stock of the seals was disposed of. What do you say about it, readers? The individual sacrifice to purchasers is almost nothing, but the collective benefits are quite important to the persons who are enabled to receive tuberculosis treatment therefrom. If everyone realized this fact, there would be no doubt about the completeness of the sale of the seals next month.

CURRENT COMMENT

Railroad Fares in Vermont.

The general public will be greatly pleased with the announcement that the mileage rate on the Montpelier and Wells River is reduced to two cents per mile and that Boston and Maine mileage will be accepted on that road. While it is understood that it is an expensive road to operate, this little peck of road has been the largest railroad holdup in the state. Unless the St. Johnsbury and Lake Champlain road reduces its rate there will likely be a large increase of travel from this section to Burlington over the Montpelier and Wells river route.—St. Johnsbury Caledonian.

To Advertise Vermont.

Speaking of booming Vermont brings this suggestion. Let the editor of every Vermont newspaper during Thanksgiving week publish something about what he considers the best opportunity for investment and development in his town or country. Then let all newspapers who can do so publish all the articles in the different papers.

We can conceive of no other plan that would reach more people in Vermont or outside of it. The articles should be short and instructive so the papers could publish them all. What do the other editors say to giving this much free advertising first for our community and finally for the state as a whole?—St. Johnsbury Caledonian.

JINGLES AND JESTS

The Obstacle.

Said the Grifter: "I'd be honest if I knew just how to be; Bribes refusing, I'd be using Every minute properly, If I could, a true and goodly Game of politics I'd play; That is how I'd like to do it— But it doesn't pay!"

Said the Burglar: "I'd not burgle Could I help it—no, not I! 'Twould be pleasure beyond measure Just to lay my 'jimmy' by. Could I choose, no house I'd enter In the dark night silence. Say! I would work to gain a living— But it doesn't pay!"

Said the Magnate: "Competition Is a fine and splendid thing. Could I place it, I'd not chase it, To it lovingly I'd cling. I'd not throttle little fellows, Could I let them prosper—nay! Competition's right and proper— But it doesn't pay!" —Puck.

MONEY IS A NECESSITY

Most of us acknowledge this, yet there are many who do not appreciate the necessity of saving a little from their income to tide them over the rough places.

Money is a necessity at all times, but the need of it is most apparent when bills pile up and the pocketbook is empty.

Saving money is an art few have mastered—be one of the few; open an account at this bank to-day and let us help you by adding four per cent. interest to your savings.

One Foot--- One Yard

One foot with a corn on it will make some people's face a yard long, and there's no wonder. A corn is not a very pleasant companion to travel with. In spite of the fact that will positively cure corns there are people who put up with corns. Don't let it be you. Use Drown's Corn Cure.

MONTPELIER.

City Council Considers Appointment of Wire Inspector.

The Montpelier city council considered at some length the electric wiring of the city at last night's regular meeting and decided that there were many defects in the system, so many, in fact, that it seemed wise to appoint a wire inspector. Whether the city charter provided for such an office was questioned, and the matter was finally left with the fire committee to discuss with the city attorney and report. Inspector Foster of the New England Insurance exchange has made an inspection of the system and says the switches are in many cases poor and that what is needed is a wire inspector, who would be responsible for conditions. Mr. Foster stated that there were defects in the wiring of practically every stone shed in the city.

A petition was read requesting that Charles Evans be placed in some institution for state treatment and that his case should come upon the state. The report was adopted. The city attorney was instructed to prepare notices to serve on all abutting land owners from Prospect street to the Berlin town line, since a petition had been filed to make Northfield street a through street. At 7:30 p. m. Dev. 13, is the date set for hearing land owners. T. E. Leland applied for permission to operate moving pictures in the city hall Saturday and Monday nights. The request was laid on the table. There is some difficulty over heating the police station and rest room in the city hall and the matter was referred to the property committee.

The hearing on the probate of the will of Col. A. C. Brown was finished yesterday and the court sustained the will. Rome G. Brown filed notice of appeal and A. D. Farwell was agreed on as special administrator.

Capt. W. A. Patten, who resigned as captain of Co. H when he was made fire chief, has not been released yet from his former position and is trying to make some arrangements with Adjutant-General Tillotson whereby it will not be necessary to give up the local company.

The Burlington Symphony society of Burlington has filed articles of association with the secretary of state. Its object is to popularize good music among the people of Burlington. There is no capital stock. The officers are: President, Henry Holt; secretary, G. W. Marks; treasurer, C. P. Cowles.

A farewell reception is to be given to-morrow evening to Rev. and Mrs. L. J. Bamberg, who leave soon for Saco, Me. Frank Bodwell of Bethlehem, N. H., was in Montpelier yesterday to see Mayor Ballard. He is on a trip to San Diego, Cal., on a wager of $500, paying his way entirely by the sale of motto cards. Mr. Bodwell was once a newspaper man and will write up an account of his journey.
